

PSALM 114

When Israel left Egypt's land, Jacob's house did go; and left a nation speaking words, a language they'd not know.

- 2 Judah was His sacred place, a sanctuary full; Israel His dominion, the people that He ruled.
- 3 The Red Sea saw and flit away, vanished to its banks; and even River Jordan moved, and parted driven back.
- 4 The mountains leapt and danced for joy, like strong and able rams; the little hillocks did the same, like tender newborn lambs.
- 5 What O sea caused you to flee, and vanish to your sides; O Jordan why did you fall back, like surging ocean tides?
- 6 You mountains what caused you to skip, about like virile rams; and hillocks how did you become, as calm as gentle lambs?
- 7 Trust in awe all ye on earth, before the Lord's great face; at the presence of the God, of Jacob (full of grace).
- 8 Who turned the rocks into a marsh, filled with watery reeds; and hardened flint became a fountain, bubbling water springs.
